"The Agency" gears up to solve space-time mystery

PARADOX

A group known only as "The Agency" is now investigating crimes against space-time.

Evidence is showing the possibility of a major space-time altering event having happened that has-and-is altering the course and shape of the multiverse in ways that are rippling through the very fibers of reality.

"We believe this is only the beginning, we are investigating any and all major events leading up to, and directly after what we are calling 'Day Zero' "

"Even the simplest alteration to the space time continuum could have drastic results!" Say's Agency founder Dr. E Brown. A space-time magic wizard and proponent of the abolishment of space-time magic altogether.

"Since discovering this magic, I've done everything possible to keep it under wraps!, The last thing the universe needs is people mucking about in the past creating paradoxes willy nilly along the way!"

Desperate times call for desperate measures, as various agents are being sent backward in time on one-way journeys to carefully course-correct history.

Fairy creatures react poorly to material plane refugees

FAIRY UPSET

Tricky and mischievous, the fairies have taken a distinct liking to toying and playing with the new refugees entering the Feywild.

Those entering the magical forests, laden with curious creatures and dangerous alike, have been in for many surprises.

"They turned all my wares into butterflies!" Says refugee and soon-to-be merchant Marcus Tervath.

"Everytime we try to set up camp the fairy's come and muck about with all our stuff!"

The cultural differences between the refugees and the fey are palpable. It's unclear whether a suitable long term relationship can be met that will allow for new arrivals from the material plane to ever exist "normally" here.

"They showed us to some berries to forage but the berries turned grandma into an oak tree!" Says new-local refugee child.

"I kinda like her better this way".

Those capable, evacuate Prime material plane!

A NEW HOME

Everyone! And I mean everyone folks! Has either evacuated or is simply gone due to the recent events that caused the material plane to cease to exist.

However! Rugby's Gazette will not fail to keep on reporting! Our offices are currently being relocated but the journalism will continue during the move! Fear not faithful readers!

Reports are coming in stating the most common evacuation planes have been The Feywild, Shadowfell, and the Ethereal plane. What will happen next folks? Rugbys Gazette has its ear on the pulse!

Rip in prison plane of Carceri dumps horrors back into multiverse

BEASTS UNLEASHED

Nightmarish Horrors once thought to be fables and creatures of lore, dump back into the corners of reality.

Ilestra' Tarmuhn Fey High-Oracle who lives in the book of wisdom has received a prophecy that vibrated though the very fibers of magic, and was felt and understood by every magic user in the Feywilds.

"Gone are the days of letting the nightmares fade with the morning light.

Gone are the moments of terror just being in your head.

Gone is the feeling of safety

Gone is the future for our children

Gone are the moments of subtle luxury

Gone are the winds of relaxation

Gone are the meek

Gone are the strong

Gone"

DYING OF THE LIGHT

Last star went dark moments before vanishing of material plane

A DARK END

What had been puzzling astronomers for years will forever remain a mystery. Moments before evacuating the royal observatory in Binneth, Hammond Hardle, made one last observation.

"It went out"
"The last of the nights sky...
.... Extinguished"

As heartbreaking as this was Hammond needed to move fast. He gathered up what equipment he had in reach and made his way to the Feywild planar gate setup by the royal wizards.

One by one they left to seek refuge in the new world.

"I hope to shed light on this mystery, as well as explore the uncharted reaches of the Feywild cosmos."

Things are still unclear what will happen to the royal leading figures of the displaced kingdom.
