Grave robbings on the rise!

NO CORPSE IS SAFE

With eyes looking toward the war, and men away from home and country, fighting dearly for their kingdom. Graves are being ransacked.

That's right folks, vile graverobber's seizing the opportunity to steal Nana's necklace from her resting corpse... Despicable.

So guard your family plots everybody. I for one don't want to see what time has done to old uncle Earl after his body is left out in the hot sun the next morning, just so a few opportunists can pry his gold teeth from his face.

Crime of all sorts has been on the rise since the draft. One such gang has been gaining traction in the inner city circles. They go by the name the "Dodgers" as they all seem to be draft dodgers cashing in on the lack of civil security as of late.

Lock your doors, Hide your wives.

MAGIC WHIRLPOOLS IN GULF

Our dear Rex Sauvage is missing

STILL MISSING

A couple issues back, we sent out a missing persons ad for our beloved Rex Sauvage, who's tales of adventure excite and amuse us all. Rex has been a staple submitter here at the paper for many years.

It is very out of character for him to just up and disappear like that. Unfortunately for our scrying attempts, Rex wears an amulet that helps to protect him from location detection and scrying. Our efforts to locate him magically have proved to be fruitless.

If the unthinkable has happened, and we have lost our dear Rex, as is the case sometimes with the most daring of adventurers, we would all like to know how.

If anyone has any information regarding his whereabouts, please come forward. His wife and children are worried sick about him

Which side did they come from!? Who's in control?

MAGICAL DEATH TORANDOES

Spotted late last night, a pair of confirmed magical water spouts have been seen forming in the center of the gulf. They are gaining in size and just spiraling about each other.

No one seems to know who is in control! Who is the magical manufacturer of these watery death bringers??

They can be seen only from some scouting ships who dare to get close enough. but have soared to the whopping size of 300 feet tall and 50 feet wide already. Massive amounts of water in the sky.

Many worry that these beasts will keep growing and form into some sort of magical hurricane attack

Doppelgangers Come out of the shadows

DECLARE THEIR COUNTRY

Amidst the current war torn countryside, news has broken that the entire country of Cacoal has been overrun, overtaken, and now fully being controlled by Doppelgangers.

The Leaders of the doppelgangers just want their country to be recognized as any other nation. This comes as a shock for many. As the slow and roguelike invasion must have costed many lives, many of which are unaccounted for since entry to the country from outsiders is no longer permitted.

"You can't just steal an entire country, and expect everyone to just be okay with it!" Says Gerard Twombly a man who used to live in Cacoal. "It's fucking ridiculous is what it is." "I say we burn the whole damn country to the ground and start again, God damn doppelgangers."

King Stroth has made no statement regarding the self declared "Changeling Nation"

FLESHLESS HORROR

"It was a horrifying being with a baren skull and no skin."

"I barely escaped with my life, the screams, still howling in my brain..."

LAYS WASTE TO ISLAND

It was a regular night of fishing for Than' Targuhn when he saw a figure in the sky followed by what must have been a dozen or so others.

A green light flashed and noxious smoke started billowing forth from the figure.

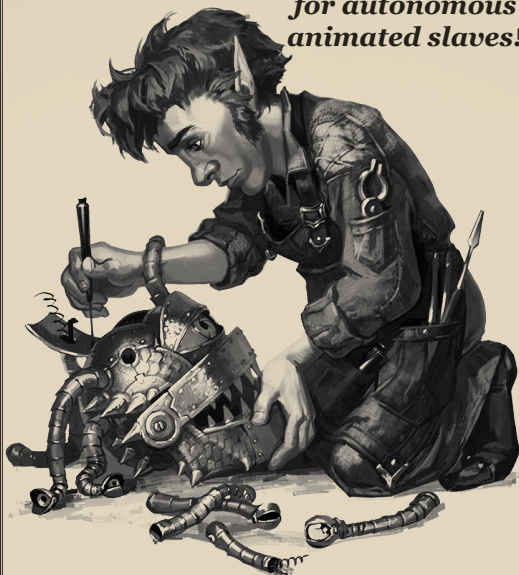

It is a popular spot for rare large monstrous fish, just East of Sawyen before getting to the Monstrous nation of Suenth.

However few venture into the mysterious island, as huge monsters and dinosaurs are known to roam there.

Locals have now been referring to the island as the 'Isle of Death'
